The data in Table I shows a steady increase in production and consumption over the period from 1950 to 1960. Exports and imports remain relatively constant, while stocks also show a slight upward trend.

The following table provides a detailed breakdown of the production and consumption figures for each year, showing the percentage change from the previous year.

Year	Production (%)	Consumption (%)	Exports (%)	Imports (%)	Stocks (%)
1950	100	100	100	100	100

1959	325	400	100	100	100
1960	350	433	100	100	100

The percentage change in production and consumption is consistently higher than that of exports and imports, indicating a strong domestic market. The stock levels remain stable throughout the period, suggesting a balanced supply and demand.

The data indicates a clear upward trend in both production and consumption over the decade, with a corresponding increase in the stock levels. This suggests a growing economy and a strong demand for the product.
