

This section of the drawing contains several blocks of text, likely technical specifications, notes, or a legend. The text is arranged in a structured manner, with some headings and sub-headings. The content is dense and appears to be a formal technical document. The text is oriented vertically, consistent with the rest of the drawing. The drawing is a technical architectural drawing, likely a set of plans for a building project. It includes a detailed floor plan, a long elevation drawing, and a section of text. The drawing is oriented vertically on the page.
